Pre-AGM Session

Regulatory Organizations: A Strategic Instrument or Archaic Leviathan

About our keynote speaker:

Jan Robinson has over 17 years of experience in professional self-regulation. Her particular interests in regulation focus on professional competency, inter-professional collaborative practice, public performance measurement and reporting, and the global movement of professionals.

She is regularly asked to participate as a regulatory representative on committees and task forces within Canada and abroad.

Jan has published in the area of professional competence, and has conducted and published research related to barriers for access to professions, and on professional accountability.

Jan is currently a Board and Executive Committee member of the Canadian Alliance of Physiotherapy Regulators, an Executive Committee member of the Federation of Health Regulatory Colleges of Ontario (Federation), and past Chair of the Ontario Regulators for Access, an interprofessional coalition interested in improving access to professions for internationally educated professionals. Known for her innovation and ability to build strong multi stakeholder relations and partnerships, Jan is a sought after regulatory advisor and speaker provincially, nationally and internationally.

Jan Robinson,
CEO & Registrar, College of Physiotherapists of Ontario

While occupational therapy in British Columbia celebrates its 10th Anniversary of regulation, the institution of profession-based regulation is hundreds of years old. This social contract of a profession to public well-being has had many roads of development over the years.

If you attend this session, you will have an opportunity to explore with Jan Robinson the following questions:

- Within the legislative structure that currently exists in B.C., how does the occupational therapy profession know it's on the right road?
- What kind of regulatory journey does it want to set for the future?

Please come and explore the strategic choices which can leverage the profession's regulatory mandate and make a difference to the health system.

Saturday, October 23, 2010
